Head Coach
Jemma Perkins

Macalester has named assistant coach Jemma (Merrick) Perkins as its interim head women’s soccer coach for the 2011 season. Coach Perkins will oversee all facets of the program throughout the season and through January 31st, 2012, to ensure the program’s recruiting efforts.

“I have been honored to be part of Mac soccer as a player and assistant and I highly respect the rich tradition that has been set by the program,” Perkins said. “I am excited to embrace that history and to have the opportunity to work with these inspirational student-athletes in a new capacity to help build on their individual and collective success.”

Perkins has served as an assistant at Macalester since 2007, working under former head coaches John Leaney and Ryan Reiling. She began her collegiate career as a Division I player at the University of Virginia before transferring to Macalester, where she started two seasons in the midfield and was team captain as a senior.

After graduating from Mac, she trained with the Aston Villa Ladies F.C. in England and has been coaching soccer around the Twin Cities in various capacities for over 15 years.

She comes from an accomplished soccer family. Her father, Alan Merrick, was a defender and captain for the Minnesota Kicks and had stints on a number of teams in the North American Soccer League in the late ‘70s and early ‘80s. He later became head coach of the Minnesota Strikers of the Major Indoor Soccer League and currently coaches the men’s club team at the University of Minnesota.

Coach Perkins lives in Minneapolis with her husband, Chad and their two sons Ty (4) and Keane (2).
